The World of Wheat

H. G. L. Strange

Analyses of thousands of farmers' fields of wheat, just concluded by the "Crop Testing Plan," reveal that many farmers are losing grades and yield and so losing money, because their grain has become mixed.

In northern areas some farmers are still growing mixtures of low-yielding and low-quality varieties such as Preston, Stanley and Huron, which cannot grade higher than No. 3 Northern.

Then in parts of northern and western Alberta some farmers who changed from Garnet to another variety still have Garnet mixed in their crops, and so the grade is lowered.

In central Alberta Golden Ball Durum unfortunately still persists and is seen in some areas mixed with hard Red Spring wheat, causing a serious lowering in grade.

In southern Alberta mixtures of Marquis and of the earlier variety Red Bobs have been noted. Such mixtures, of course, cannot be harvested to the best advantage, and so the grain usually contains unripe green Marquis kernels.

Thousands of farmers are losing money by growing these mixtures. All farmers should guard against such losses. This can easily be done by having a sample of the grain they intend to sow tested free by the "Crop Testing Plan."

Local Farmer Tells How He Makes Wire Grain Bins

(From the Viking News)

Farmers have been receiving much free advice on how they should construct wire grain bins. This is how I have been constructing them for the last ten years.

Take a full roll of 28 inch hog wire. Unroll a circle the size of the bin. Splice ends of wires into roll, keeping roll inside. Unroll another circle raising it spirally to within 6 inches of top of first circle when once around. Continue to unroll and continue to lay and splice ends in. Finish top by making full lap and splice ends in. Use short pieces of wire or twine to hold wire in place while lining and filling is progressing.

Bins 12 or 14 feet in diameter are OK but any change can be made to fit the situation.

The wire has had satisfactory results by lining with protein or dry enough hay. Using enough so light does not show through it. Press it into place with the back of a fork as the grain comes in contact.

What I should like now is for someone to tell me how they roofed such a bin with eaves to extend one foot. By using the above method of construction your hog wire is still serviceable, the lapped wire takes the strain and you have no splices to crack loose.—B.C.

Under joint auspices of the Kinsella and Viking Veterans Volunteer Reserve Units, a National Day of Prayer service was held at the fair grounds on Sunday at 1:30 p.m. A company of veterans and volunteers formed up under Major Gordon of the Kinsella platoon and Dr. Haworth of the commanding the Viking V. V. R. and home guard unit. Quite a number of citizens were present to join in the service which was conducted by Rev. Mr. H. G. Lester, pastor of the United Church. The speakers present were:

Two hymns were sung, "Soldiers of the Cross" and "Lord of the Land." Music was furnished by trumpeters Dave Cary, Bob Thunell, Bobbie Brown, and Wm. Elliott. The pastor read the scripture lesson from Ephesians Chap. 6, verses 10-20, 23 and 24. The troops and citizens with bowed heads joined in a prayer for the Empire in this dark hour, that righteousness, freedom and liberty among the peoples of the earth may quickly be restored. Prayers were said for the Royal family, the soldiers, sailors and airmen, and all those now engaged in the great struggle that right may prevail by the Grace of God.

In a brief address the pastor stressed the importance of being prepared for any sacrifice in the cause for which the British Empire is now engaged. The service closed with the singing of the national anthem and benediction. The company was dismissed after a route march around the race track.

A bit of good news was received this week by Mr. H. B. Collier in the form of a War Savings Certificate for $50 from the makers of "Clover Leaf" sea-foods, as "First prize in the "Clover Leaf Help Canada's War Effort Competition".

Mr. Collier says that it has always been debatable that the eating of sea-food produces uric acid, but here appears an incident as favorable proof. It was a can of very delicious oysters served by Mrs. Collier. The idea that resulted and which won the award was "By Buying British goods, we help Britain Buy Bombers".

Considerable publicity was given the announcement of the award by the Clover-Leaf people, by means of the radio on Monday, C.J.C.A. spreading the glad tidings in their usual efficient manner.

Mrs. Hanson has returned from Camrose after visiting with relatives and friends there. Dr. Haworth had quite a trip over to Camrose on Sunday when he had to plow mud from Stormo to within a few miles of town. A gravelled highway from Killam to Viking would do much to take the hazards of travel between these points.

N. P. Rashbrook of the News staff received the sad news Saturday that his mother had passed away at her home in Saskatoon. He left on Tuesday to attend the funeral.

Death Calls Pioneer Lady of Kinsella District Last Week

MRS. JEAN CLARK BAWDEN

Mrs. Jean Clark Bawden, wife of Mr. J. P. Bawden of Kinsella district, passed away at the Viking hospital on Monday, September 2nd, after an illness lasting some months. Funeral services were held on Wednesday, September 4th, at 2 o'clock, in the afternoon from the family residence, eight miles southwest of Kinsella, Mr. C. N. Morgan of Dayland conducting the last and rites. Friends and neighbors gathered to pay their last respects to one who had lived among them for years and whose life had been an inspiration to many by her cheerful disposition and kindly ways. The pall bearers were Messrs. Dave Borwick, Wm. Revell, Ted Barge, S. Anderson, Ole Orbeck and Jack Kyle. Burial was made in the Kinsella cemetery.

The late Mrs. Bawden was born in Dundas, Scotland, November 24th, 1883 and died at Viking, Alberta, on September 2nd, 1940. She came to Medicine Hat, Alberta, in June, 1915, and on April 16th, 1914, was united in marriage to Mr. J. P. Bawden. They settled in the Kinsella district in the early spring of 1920 where they have since resided.

Surviving relatives left to mourn her passing are her husband, one daughter, Mrs. Jack McKee (Jean), of Kinsella, and one son, Clifford, at home. Also one brother, Pete Simpson in Medicine Hat, three brothers in the Old Country, Richard, James and Robert, and one sister, Ina, also overseas.

Friends in Kinsella and Viking districts join in expressions of deep sympathy to the bereaved.

What Air Waves Are Saying Over C.J.C.A.

The confusion in radio schedules around time change (September 30), reminds him of a story based on confusion in the English language. A colored lady purchased some eggs in the store of a colored merchant.

This was the conversation:

COLORADO LADY: Is dose eggs fresh?

COLORADO MERCHANT: I ain't a-sayin' they ain't.

C. L.: I ain't askin' you is they ain't. The askin' you is they is. Is they? Actually, the time change problem isn't so difficult for the listener. In most cases, he needs to listen exactly one hour later than usual for his favourite shows. Others, which do not follow that pattern, will receive plenty of advance publicity to make sure that you don't miss them.

TO MAKE CASH ADVANCES

A result of the conference between members of the Broken committee and the federal government's wheat committee headed by Hon. J. A. McKinnon, is that a recommendation will be made to the dominion cabinet that a plan be instituted to provide for the borrowing of up to 35c a bushel by farmers on wheat stored in farm granaries. At the time of writing the cabinet had not indicated its intention or the methods by which the loans will be issued, but it appears to be safe to intimate that a loaning policy will shortly be in effect.

If a farmer had 1 Northern wheat in store in his granary and the freight handling charges, etc. at point were 17c his equity therein would be 12c. If he borrowed 35c a bushel, he would still have an equity of 18c a bushel.—Wheat Pool Budget.

Now Is The Time

"The invasion of Canada seems to be planned to take place between the months of July and October when full use may be made of the northern waters of Hudson Bay which are practically undefended."

The foregoing quotation in an article under the caption "Is Invasion Next?" which appeared in the August issue of New World, a pictorial journal published in Toronto, is not cited here with any desire to create unnecessary alarm, but the entire article does confirm the extreme importance of the steps which have been taken by the government to date for the defence of Canada and demonstrates the necessity of every citizen of the country being on the alert to thwart fifth column activities and to report any suspicious circumstances to the proper authorities when, unquestionably, they would be thoroughly investigated.

The latter recommendation is made on the assumption that the statements made in the article in question are based on facts and, in any event it must not be forgotten that Hitler's avowed objective is not merely the subjugation of Great Britain but the destruction of the entire British Empire, with Canada as one of the richest plums in prospect. If the programme could be carried out.

A German invasion of Canada, as pointed out in the article, presupposes defeat of Great Britain, but it would not be out of character for Hitler to make such an attempt without waiting for such a dire consummation of his plans against the "little light isle" if, thereby, it would further his policy of creating divisions in other parts of the world and causing embarrassment and difficulty for British and Empire arms in as many quarters as possible.

The history of the first year of the war in Europe, which has now spread into Africa and Asia, demonstrates full well that the Hitler-plan of conquest always incorporates fifth column activities as a prelude to the use of guns and tanks, aeroplanes and bombs, armed ships and torpedoes as the weapons of invasion.

Not Fantastic, Perhaps

Briefly, the article referred to, accompanied by a map, reveals the purported plan for the invasion and occupation of Canada, said to have been adopted by the German high command in 1935, based on the recommendations of one, Colin Ross, a Nazi spy, who surveyed the country the previous year and blue-printed the routes for the invading army. His work is said to have covered the Dominion from the Atlantic coast to Regina and from the Arctic to the U.S. international boundary.

Using Iceland, Greenland and the Faroe Islands as stepping stones, the army of invasion is to be brought to Canadian shores in a great fleet, which, when split into three divisions will make their approaches through Labrador and Quebec, through Moonstone on St. James Bay and through Churchill on Hudson Bay. Ross is said to have reported that if his plan is followed, Canada could easily be dropped into the Nazi basket.

The plan may sound fantastic to residents of Western Canada who geographically, at least, appear at the present time to be remote from the battlefields of Europe but, as the author of the article declares: "This Nazi agent's word can well be a warning of events to come. After all, did not Hitler always boast of his plans for conquest? That he was not believed was not his fault."

In the light of events of the past few months, there is nothing fantastic about Hitler's plans. They have been only too successful up to the time he undertook to tackle Great Britain. Two or three months ago, probably the whole world, outside of Germany would have scoffed at the suggestion that France could be subdued and occupied and brought under the Nazi heel in the short space of two or three weeks. Was there not the Maginot line and was not the French army acknowledged by experts as the best in the world? But it happened and apparently, according to plan.

Only One Insurance

The people of Canada and of Great Britain have complete confidence in their belief that Britain will not, and cannot, be conquered. But, there is no assurance that some attempt will not be made against Canada, if Britain should suffer temporary reverses.

The only insurance against defeat, in the events of such an attempt being made against this country is full and complete preparedness, not only in men but in all resources of wealth and arms, high morale, unflinching indomitability, the will to sacrifice, a stern sense of duty and alertness against fifth column activities and subversive propaganda. And that means now. Tomorrow may be too late.

Allowances Grow With Forces

As the strength of Canada's armed forces increases from day to day, applications for allowances pour into the Dependents' Allowance Board in Ottawa in rising numbers. At present about 1,600 applications a day are being received. About $2,000,000 are paid out monthly in allowance cheques, about 70,000 in number. Four hundred accountants and clerks are kept busy dealing with these.

Second Experience

History repeated itself for William Taylor, special agent, Canadian National Railways at Antwerp, Belgium. Forced to flee German invaders in 1914, Taylor again got away by the "skin of my teeth" as the Nazis entered Antwerp in May last.

Fruit For England

A. G. Cameron, Australian minister of commerce and the navy, announced the sale to the British food ministry of 750,000 cases of Australian canned apricots, peaches and pears for £700,000 ($2,261,000). Bulk of the fruit has arrived in the United Kingdom, Mr. Cameron said.

Too Bad For Canary

This story of an air raid reached us from a southeast England town. A German bomb fell in the town; the explosion caused the bottom of a canary's cage to fall out; the canary fluttered to the floor, and the cat pounced on the canary and ate it.

School teaching in Chicopee, Mass., in 1713 was not a profitable profession. It paid 34 cents a week.

Evacuation Of Children

How They Are Being Looked After In Their Own Country

We have been reading so much about the evacuation of children from Britain to Canada that we may have had our interest dulled in the matter of how the evacuated-from-London children are being looked after in their own country. And so the following taken from an English woman's letter to a Canadian friend may be welcomed by some of my readers.

"I am fairly busy. On some days, if I am needed, I help at the children's canteen," so writes this Englishwoman. "The canteen serves dinners to hundreds of London children evacuated here. The whole dinner is cooked by the Women's Voluntary Service and is served by them, and all washing up is done by them. Some of the women doing this are wives and daughters of the well-to-do families of Sussex. All this is unpaid work, and is a great benefit to the houses where children are billeted, as it saves the women of the house preparing a dinner for those children billeted on her."

"This war has caused a tremendous domestic upheaval. Scarcely any families are together. It has now become quite usual to take a child into your home. Most of the children are now happily placed, and have got used to their new homes. The Government now pays about 10 shillings a week to the hostess for each child. The parents add to this, if their means permit, and also supply clothes and pocket money. Wealthier parents pay full board and lodging. Children of the very poor pay nothing, and the Women's Voluntary Service make clothes for them. The whole situation is made harder by the number of Dutch, Belgian, Polish and Czech refugees."

The Channel Tunnel

Lucky For England That It Has Never Been Built

The London correspondent of the Ottawa Journal says: Surely we may take it for granted, after recent events, that we have heard the last of that Channel tunnel scheme? It used to crop up, with undiminished vigor and persuasion, every few years, and was always turned down by our military authorities. Latterly the advocates of the Channel tunnel seemed to be gaining strength, however, and even the military opposition to it was weakening a bit.

What would be the position to-day, if a Channel tunnel existed, and the Germans held, as they would have done, the French end of that nexus? It is all very well to argue that it would easily have been destroyed, but would not the German higher command have taken it into their particular consideration and whilst seizing the French end, also have made a realistic effort, by means of airborne troops and parachutists, to get control of our end before we had time to press the button?

And, apropos pressing the button that would blow the tunnel up, might not we have been faced by the dilemma that the tunnel was packed with our troop trains? The recent experience of the Meuse bridges, and Fifth Column activities, would be enough to give any Channel tunnel project in future years its coup de grace.

Picture Better Than Words

Clever Cartoon Shows Up Pleas Of Nazis For Food

The Chinese, as we have observed before, have a saying that one picture is worth 10,000 words. The truth of that was exemplified the other day by a cartoon in the New York Post, by Rolin Kirby, which hits off the German pleas to the United States to feed Europeans, more effectively than an article of 10,000 words, or 1,000 words, would do.

The cartoon shows a rotund Nazi seated at a table, stuffing himself with food. Before him is a plate of fish, labeled "from Norway." There is a big ham from Poland, butter from Denmark, cheese from Holland, and a bottle of wine from France. Below it, it says: "If anybody in Europe starves it won't be he." That is the situation as it is, and as it would be if the British were soft-hearted enough to lift the blockade on food. The Germans are robbing the occupied countries of food and taking it to Germany. If the blockade is lifted to admit "relief" food the Nazis would take that, too, to keep their armies in fighting trim. —St. Thomas Times-Journal.

A German expelled by the French last year, as head of a spy ring, has been appointed ambassador to conquered France. He ought to feel right at home now.

Ruled Over Rich Province

Maharajah Of Mysore Dies' After Reign Of 45 Years

The Maharajah of Mysore, Sri Krishnaraja Wodeyar Bahadur, died at Bombay, India, after a heart attack. He was 56 years old. The Maharajah, ruler of 6,500,000 persons and reputed to have a personal fortune of $400,000,000, was regarded as one of the wealthiest men in the world.

He was an exotic Indian prince, the first ruler of Mysore ever to leave his country. He travelled to London in 1936, taking his special water, special food and chef with him. He also took along the family goddess, a small golden image, called Chamundewari.

The Maharajah was a small slight and black-moustached figure with brilliant eyes and a low musical voice. He wore western clothes except for a turban, in which glinted threads of gold.

He was the largest of the Indian states except Hyderabad. It is rich in gold, granite quarries and coal, with annual revenue of about $12,500,000.

The Maharajah belonged to the Kshatriya or military caste of Hindus. He lived in a huge palace in Mysore, where he maintained a fleet of 80 automobiles and once was host to King Edward, when the former monarch was Prince of Wales. The Maharajah was entitled to a salute of 21 guns.

The Maharajah's brother, who would have been his heir, died March 10, 1940, at the age of 51. The Maharajah succeeded his father on the throne in 1895 and thus was in the 45th year of his reign.

SELECTED RECIPES

VANILLA CREAM PUDDING

3 tablespoons granulated sugar.
2½ tablespoons Durham corn starch
1 teaspoon salt.
2 cups hot milk.
1½ teaspoon pure vanilla.

Combine the sugar thoroughly with corn starch and stir in hot milk. Stir and cook in double boiler until mixture has thickened. Cover and cook, with occasional stirring, until no raw flavor remains. Remove from heat, add vanilla and cool partially before turning into stemmed dessert glasses. May be garnished with whipped cream and fruits for serving, or may be poured over fruits, in dessert glasses.

Note: For a dessert which may be unmoored when chilled, increase corn starch to three tablespoonsfuls.

BUTTERED ASPARAGUS TIPS

Place half a dozen cooked tips on the Shredded Wheat and pour over them melted butter seasoned with salt and paprika. Garnish with a strip of pimiento. Serves one.

Women Bell Ringers

First One In England Rang Peel When Queen Victoria Died

"Before the last war women bell ringers were almost unheard of in England. Since then several hundred have entered the profession." This statement was made by the first feminine bell ringer in England, Mrs. J. C. Sullivan.

According to Mrs. Sullivan, the custom of ringing bells originated in England about 1600 and the art has changed little to this day. Originally the purpose of bell-ringing was to summon soldiers to arms as well as church bells to church. They also sounded the alarm in fire or tumult, and whoever commanded the bell commanded the town because at a moment's notice he could rally and concentrate his adherents.

More recently the ringing of bells in English villages has been reserved for Sunday church services and special occasions. Since the outbreak in the present war bell ringing has been forbidden and to-day the only occasion upon which the bells may ring is to warn the townspeople of German parachutists.

Mrs. Sullivan rang a muffled peel for the death of Queen Victoria. She rang the bells at the coronation of King Edward VII, and she tolled for the late King George V.

New York Engineer Tells About Its Use In War

The gas surprise of this war is harmless carbon dioxide. Carbon dioxide is the fizz of soft drinks, the collar on beer, the stuff that nature put in the air to make man breathe regularly.

With all nations set for poison gas as a result of experience in the First Great War, carbon dioxide stole in the back way.

It ferried the Germans across flooded Holland lowlands and European rivers. It is saving aviators on both sides from fire and from drowning.

The facts about the war uses of this gas come from Walter Kidde, New York engineer, one of the pioneers in use of carbon dioxide for fire fighting.

A bottle about twice the size of the family quart-of-milk container is attached to folded rubber boots. It is filled with liquefied carbon dioxide, which is carbon dioxide gas under pressure.

The turn of a valve releases this liquid, which expands so fast it rushes out as gas and inflates a large boot in a few seconds. That's how the Nazis crossed the water defences on the lowlands.

The aviator who has to bail out over water winks a cord which in three seconds opens a tiny bottle of liquid carbon dioxide that inflates his vest to the volume of a life preserver.

Sold On Air Travel

Ten years ago Mrs. M. J. Pile, of Winnipeg, said that if she lived to celebrate her eightieth birthday, she would do it in the air. Came the big day, and she climbed into a plane at the Stevenson airport for a half-hour flight. It was her first journey among the clouds, but on landing she remarked: "From now on I go by plane."

Ontario's capital should not get an exalted idea of its own importance. A modest citizen points out there is a Toronto in Australia, another in Ohio and still another in South Dakota. "Toronto" is an Indian word meaning "collection of huts."

"Now why, you ask, should soil ever be transported from Boston Common to Halifax? It is an accident of the days of sailing ships. The soil was carried as ballast."

NO OTHER TIRE LIKE IT Firestone CHAMPION

LOWER PRICED FIRESTONE TIRES
In addition to the exceptional new Champion tire, Firestone has their line of tires, priced from $1.99 to $2.99. HIGH SPEED, STANDARD, HIGH SENTINEL.
No matter what price you pay for a tire, go to the nearest Firestone dealer and ask the manager to let you see ours.

FROM the innermost fibre to the outermost tread, everything in this smart, streamlined Firestone Champion tire is new and different. It sets up entirely new standards of safety and long mileage because it is the result of Firestone's quarter-century of experience in building tires for race track speeds.

Here are some of the things you get in Firestone Champion tires—new Safety-Lock cords treated with a new and advanced Gum-Dipping process; 27% stronger bond between tread and body; 35% greater heat protection against blowouts; an amazing new tread with sharp-edged angles for quick stops—a tread that gives 11% more non-skid mileage.

Not only is the Firestone Champion an engineering triumph but it is super-value as well—for, with all its extra value, it does not cost one cent more than ordinary tires. Have them put on today. Dealer put them on today.

let had seen her and had advised the calling in of another. The second specialist had suggested that it would be advisable to see a third. The third had come and asked questions. Had any of her parents suffered from illusions? Were they hysterical? Didn't Mrs. Ellenbury think that if she made an effort she could get up from her bed for, say, half an hour a day?

The truth was that Mrs. Ellenbury, having during her life experienced most of the sensations which are peculiar to womanhood, having walked and worked, directed servants, given little parties, made calls, witnessed theatrical entertainments, played croquet and tennis, had decided some 20 years ago that there was nothing quite as comfortable as staying in bed. So she became an invalid, had a treble subscription to a library, and acquired a very considerable acquaintance with the reticences of society, as depicted by authors who were authorities on misunderstood wives.

In a sense Mr. Ellenbury was quite content that this condition of affairs should be as it was. Once he was satisfied that his wife, in whom he had the most friendly interest, was suffering no pain, he was satisfied to return to the bachelor life. Every morning and every night (when he returned home at a reasonable hour) he went into her room and asked: "How are we to-day?"

"About the same—certainly no worse."
"That's fine! Is there anything you want?"
"No, thank you—I have everything."

This exchange varied slightly from day to day, but generally it followed on those lines.

Ellenbury had come back late from Ratas after a tiring day. Usually he directed the Rata Syndicate from his own office; indeed, he had never before appeared visibly in the operations of the company. But this new coup of Harlow's was on so gigantic a scale that he must appear in the daylight, and his connection with a concern suspected by every reputable firm in the city must be public property. And that hurt him. He, who had secretly robbed his clients, who had engaged in systematic embezzlement and might now, but for the intervention and help of Mr. Stratford Harlow, have been an inmate of Dartmoor, walked with shame under the stigma of his known connection with a firm which was openly described as unscrupulous.

He was the creature of Harlow, his slave. This sort of place in his self-esteem had never been healed. It was his recreation to brood upon the ignominy of his lot. He hated Harlow with a malignancy that none, seeing his mild, worn face, would suspect. To him Stratford Harlow was the very incarnation of evil, a devil on earth who had bound his soul in fetters of brass. And of late he had embarked upon a novel course of dreaming. It was the confused middle of a dream, having neither beginning nor end, but it was all about a humiliated Harlow; Harlow being dragged in chains through the awful Arch; Harlow robed at the apothecosis of his triumph. And always Ellenbury was there, leering, chuckling, pointing a derisive finger at the man he had ruined, or else he was flitting by midnight across the Channel with a suitcase packed with fabulous sums of money that he had siphoned from his master.

Mr. Ellenbury hit at his nails. Soon money would be flowing into Ratas—he would spend days indorsing checks, clear drafts—drafts.

You may pass a draft into a bank and it becomes a number of figures in a passbook. On the other hand, you may hand it across the counter and receive real money. Sometimes Harlow preferred that method—dollars into sterling, sterling into Swiss francs, Swiss francs into florins, until the identity of the original payment was beyond recognition.

Drafts.

In the room above his head his wife was lying immersed in the self-revelations of a fictional Countess Mrs. Ellenbury had a little money of her own. The house was her property. He could augment her income by judicious remittances.

A Good Medicine

People Should Take Advantage Of Every Opportunity For Laughter

Laughter is declared to be a good medicine. Everyone, therefore should welcome every opportunity for laughing.

Several of the world's great authorities on philosophy and life for mental laughter. Hefeland says it is one of the greatest aids to digestion. Carlyle points out that no man who has once heartily and wholly laughed can be altogether and irremediably depressed. Laugh if you are wise! Marital advisers. And beware of him who hates the laughter of a child, sagely warns Lavater. A good laugh is sunshine in the house. Open the windows and let the sunshine in.

Realities Of War

New York Paper Says Americans Who Fall To Understand

The New York Herald Tribune rapped editorially those Americans who still are not aware that the greatest battle in the history of civilization is under way. Pointing out that Great Britain "is the last pin holding together the fragments of the comfortable world to which we were brought up," the paper said:

"It is almost incredible that Americans can still stand so comfortably wrapped in the illusions of a world already gone, pottering along with rearmament as fast as conventional political thought-habits will allow, wondering whether maybe we ought not to do something about sending those world war destroyers some day, taking an intelligent (but quite inactive) interest in matters of Canadian and Latin-American defense, wondering whether we ought not to force the British to let us feed continental Europe this winter."

"This winter! Who knows what the world is going to look like by winter? The British are not thinking about feeding continental Europe; they are thinking about feeding the ammunition belts into the machine guns fast enough. And the overwhelming fact is that if they don't feed them fast enough this country will not be thinking about rationing Hitler Europe this winter either."

Impartiality is the life of justice, as justice is of all good government.—Justinian.

Justice is itself the great standing policy of civil society; and any departure from it, under any circumstance, lies under the suspicion of being no policy at all.—Burke.

Justice delayed, is justice denied.—Gladstone.

Justice and truth make man free, injustice and error enslave him.—Mary Baker Eddy.

God gives manhood but one clue to success, utter and exact justice; that he guarantees, shall be always expedient.—Wendell Phillips.

There is no virtue so truly great and godlike as justice.—Addison.

Mobilizing Man Power

Thirty Thousand Men To Be Trained Each Month

Decks have been cleared for the mobilization of man-power for home defence and the stage set for the military training plan that will summon approximately 30,000 young Canadians to camp each month to be taught fundamentals of modern soldiering.

Until the men, certified fit for training, reach their designated camps, and are turned over to military authorities of the Department of National Defence, responsibility for arrangements lies with the Department of National War Services.

Single men between the ages of 21 and 45 are liable to be called to train during the first year. The Department of National War Services will call up the men by groups, starting with those 21 years of age in October, as the Department of National Defence makes known its requirements. These men will be medically examined as near as possible to their place of registration. All men in category C1 or better will be considered fit for training. Transportation will be provided free for the men to attend medical examination and to proceed to one of the 30 or more training centres. It is expected there will be eight calls within a year.

English Sense Of Humor

Was Very Much In Evidence At Recent London Party

The Toronto Globe and Mail says: The English sense of humor is, at times, impressive. An example: Hitler announced that on Aug. 15 he would be in London. For that date a great tea party was arranged for Canadian and other overseas forces, and at the head table there were two vacant chairs: one for Hitler and the other for his bulky henchman, Mussolini. The absentees did not have the courtesy to send regrets.

SHORTHAND HOME COURSE
AN AID TO JOB HUNTERS

EMPLOYMENT AGENTS

"Jobs are few for unskilled workers," says the employment agent. "We will be better able to place you if you acquire a skill. Shorthand, for instance, isn't hard to learn and is a fine asset."
Yes, shorthand is an entering wedge for almost any type of career you choose. And you can teach yourself shorthand at home.

The popular Pitman system is just a quicker way of writing. Instead of spelling out a word, you write two or three brief symbols for the way it sounds. "Plan" looks like an S with a dot. "Company" is a curve with three dots.
The same few sounds will recur in all the words your employer dictates; so you won't have many symbols to learn. And, with regular practice, saying the words aloud to train your pencil and your ear to work together, you'll soon be taking real office-speed dictation.

On the job you'll find the Pitman short forms big time-savers. For terms often used, like "delivery," you have extra-brief symbols.

Quality for a well-paid job. Our 32-page booklet teaches shorthand in easy step-by-step lessons, including short forms, phrase forms, exercises for practice. Give tips on gaining speed.

Send 15 cents in coins for your copy of "Self-Instruction in Shorthand" to Home Service Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 170 McDermott Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man.

Move According To Plan

People In English Town Follow Method When Made Cows

The Germans have taught the people of one English town how to hurry—it takes them less than a minute to get into air raid shelters after the first wail of the warning siren. Each time a raid starts, shopkeepers hurry out and raise their shutters, bank clerks seize their cash and ledger and rush for the vaults and people vanish from the streets, all in a matter of seconds. Soon after the raid is over, figures can be seen hurrying to the library to await the posting of the casualty list. It's all rather matter-of-fact and methodical. There's no sign of panic.

"Many people consume far too little water per day," writes Dr. Walter H. Eddy, professor of physiological chemistry, who sets about two quarts daily as the amount an ordinary person should drink to maintain proper water balance.

Germany's Surplus Potatoes

Last year in Germany three times as many potatoes as the population needed for food were grown. The surplus was converted into dozens of synthetic alcohols for products, but mainly into alcohol for blending into motor fuel.

CHAPTER XIV.—Continued

"A lawyer. But he knows as much about finance as law. I've got an idea he's on the crook. We've never had a complaint against him, though there was a whisper once about his financial position. In the old days he used to act for some mighty queer people, and I think he lost money on the Stock Exchange."

"He's the man who lives at Norwood?"

Elk nodded.

"Norwood," he said deliberately; "the place where the letters were posted to Mrs. Gibbins. I wondered you hadn't seen him before—no, I haven't, though." He reconsidered. "You didn't want to make Harlow think that you are not that Gibbins business." He stroked his nose thoughtfully. "Yuh, that's it. He doesn't know you. You might call him on some excuse, but you'll have to be careful."

"How does he get from Norwood to the City?"

Elk shook his head.

"He's not the kind of fellow you can pick up in the train," he said. "He runs a hired car which Ratas pay for. Royatone House is his address. It's an old brick box near the Crystal Palace. He lives there with his wife—an invalid. He hasn't any vices that I know of, unless being a friend of Harlow's puts him on the list. And he's not approachable any other way. He doesn't work in Norwood, but has a little office in Theobald's road, and if you call his clerk will see you and tell you that he is very sorry but Mr. Ellenbury can't give you an appointment till the autumn of 1935! But Ellenbury might tell something, if you could get at him."

"You are certain that Ellenbury is working with Harlow?"

"Working with him?" Elk spat contemptuously but unerringly into the fire. "It should say he was! They're like brothers—up to a point. Do you remember the police station old man Harlow presented to a grateful nation? It was Ellenbury who bought the ground and gave the orders to the builders. Nobody knew it was a police station until it was up. After they'd put in the foundations and got the walls breast high, there was a sort of strike because foreign labor was employed, and all the workmen had to be sent back to Italy or Germany, or wherever they came from. That's where Ellenbury's connection came under notice, though we weren't aware that he was working for Harlow till a year later."

Jim decided upon taking the bol-der course, but the lawyer was prepared for the visitation.

CHAPTER XV.

Mr. Ellenbury had his home in a large, gaunt house between Norwood and Anerley. It had been ugly even in the days when square, box-shaped dwellings testified to the strange mentality of the Victorian architects, and stucco was regarded as an effective and artistic method of covering bad brickwork. It was in shape a cube, from the low centre of which, on the side facing the road, ran a long flight of stone steps confined within a plaster balustrade. It had oblong windows set at regular intervals on three sides, and was a mansion in which every window blind lent an air of distinction.

Royatone House stood squarely in the centre of two acres of land, and could boast a rosary, a croquet lawn, a kitchen garden, a rustic summer house, and a dribbling fountain. Scattered about the grounds there were a number of indelicate statues representing famous figures of mythology—these had been purchased cheaply from a local exhibition many years before at a great weeding-out of those gods chiefted with such anatomical faithfulness that they constituted an offense to the eye of the Young Person.

In such moments of leisure as his activities allowed, Mr. Ellenbury occupied a room gloomily papered, which was variously styled "The Study" and "The Master's Room" by his wife and his domestic staff. It was a high and ill-proportioned apartment, cold and cheerless in the winter, and was overcrowded with furniture that did not fit. Round tables and topheavy secretaries; a horsehair sofa that ran askew across one corner of the room, where it could only be reached by removing a heavy card-table; there was space for Mr. Ellenbury to sit and little more.

On this December evening he sat at his rolltop desk, biting his nails thoughtfully, a look of deep concern on his pinched face. He was a man who had grown prematurely old in a lifelong struggle to make his resources keep pace with ambition. He was a lover of horses; not other people's horses that show themselves occasionally on a race-track, but horses to keep in one's own stable, horses that looked over the half-door at the sound of a familiar voice; horses that might be decked in shiny harness shoulder-to-shoulder and draw a glittering phaeton along a country road.

All men have their dreams; for 20 years Mr. Ellenbury's pet dream was to drive into the arena of a horse show behind two spanking bays with nodding heads and high knee action, and to drive out again amid the plaudits of the multitude with the ribbons of the first prize streaming from the bridles of his team. Many a man has dreamed less worthily.

He had had bad luck with his horses, bad luck with his family. Mrs. Ellenbury was an invalid. No doctor had ever discovered the nature of her illness. One West End specialist

A LOST REGISTRATION CARD

It is only to be expected that many, over the course of time, will lose or mislay their registration certificates. Such people will of course wonder how they can secure duplicates. The answers are as follows:

A new card can only be got by applying to the dominion statistician, Ottawa. It may take two weeks, as cards will be issued only after check with the original registration form which goes to Ottawa.

The application should give the name and number of elector in district and number of polling division in which the registrant ordinarily resided during the registration period.

In the case of registration at place of employment, the number of electoral district and polling division should be used, just as on the card.

In the case of registration away from home, the numbers must be those as if registration had been made at home. This may entail some trouble but is essential. The reason is that at Ottawa where all forms eventually go for sorting, they will be filed in the home record.

It is also advised that all card holders should keep a separate record of them, with all numbers, where it can be consulted in case the card is lost. Incidentally, finders of registration cards will have owners much inconvenience and embarrassment by returning them promptly.

Cattle marketings at the stock yards at Edmonton are practically double those of last year, the department of agriculture announces. The increase is attributed to strong demand and higher prices, rather than to the uncertainty of the wheat situation.

V.V.R.

By Harold F. Cruickshank, Edmonton

They're not so young—the Old Guard. For some have temples grayed, and some I saw were hiding a limp, while on parade.

Their waistlines caught my notice—Could be flatter, yes, by far. But they don't profess to glamor—Those old files of V.V.R.

You should have seen their shoulders At the Sergeant-Major's "Shun"! And watched those stomachs vanish When their heels clicked, all as one!

Those Vets I saw parading Once learned soldiering complete—How to parry with a bayonet, How to hold their heads and feet.

And they learned it the hard way At the bark of R.S.M., Musketry and route march, Bombing, rifle range, and then—

Where the crash of shell and mortar Vied with howitzer's mad blast. They dug in and held their sector 'Til the tide of war had passed.

Now again they drill by numbers. How to dress when forming line; How to swing those arms when marching, How to make a right incline.

And they take it with a spirit Quite as keen as that of yore, When they proudly served their country

In their gallant, world-famed Corps. When you shortly see them drilling, You'll know quickly who they are, By their hall mark of experience, And their arm bands—V.V.R.

BANK OF MONTREAL CROP REPORT No. 12

Good progress has been made with the harvesting of crops in the prairie provinces, although operations were temporarily delayed by wet weather in Manitoba and parts of Saskatchewan. Threshing is well advanced in Manitoba and is becoming general in Saskatchewan. In Alberta a good percentage of the wheat has been cut and threshing has commenced in the southern districts. Wheat yields on the whole are favorable in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Alberta has maintained the prospect of a good crop, with anticipated wheat production greater than last year. West is grading well although recent rains may lower grades in some districts. Slight frost damage has occurred at scattered points. In Quebec, the harvesting of grains has been practically completed under favorable conditions. The remaining crops have made satisfactory progress, although in some localities lack of moisture and cool weather have retarded growth. In Ontario, prolonged wet weather and low temperatures have delayed threshing operations, except in some eastern sections, and dry weather is urgently needed. Crops, on the whole, are fairly satisfactory, although nearly half of the tobacco crop has been destroyed as a result of the severe frost in the latter part of August. In the maritime provinces crops generally have been adversely affected during the past two weeks by high temperatures and lack of moisture, and rain is urgently needed. A satisfactory crop of potatoes is anticipated. Because of the dry weather, apples are sizing slowly, and the crop will be below average. British Columbia's crops are maturing early under favorable conditions, with good yields of practically all staples generally indicated. Grain yields are below average, but hay has been heavy and of good quality.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF BATTLE RIVER No. 423

Written complaints have been received by me through the mails, concerning relief recipients. As representative of the municipal district I am always ready to investigate these matters or have same investigated in fairness to all parties, but letters of this kind must be signed by the complainant before any action can be taken.

R. D. Smallwood,
Reeve M.D. Battle River 423,
Irma Alberta.
